Contributors

ANA AYUSTE is Associate Professor in the Department of Theory and History of Education at the Universidad de Barcelona. Member of the Working Group for Innovation in Teaching “Innova.the” (Grupo Consolidado de Innovación Docente, “Innova.the”). Professor Ayuste works in the area of reversing socio-educational inequality. Among her publications are: a collaboration, Planteamientos de la pedagogía crítica. Comunicar y transformar (1998, 3^a ed.); and together with Professor Jaume Trilla, “Pedagogías de la Modernidad y Discursos Postmodernos sobre la educación” (2005).

MARIA ROSA BUXARRAIS holds a Master’s degree in Psychology and a Doctorate in Education. Dr. Buxarrais is an Associate Professor in the Faculty of Education and is a member of the Research Group on Education in Values and Moral Development (Grupo de Investigación de Educación en Valores y Desarrollo Moral, GREM) of the Universidad de Barcelona. For the last ten years, she has been Director of the Education in Values Program of the Institute of Sciences of Education of the Universidad de Barcelona. Her expertise is in the field of continuing education for teachers and in university teaching and research. She is author of various publications with a Spanish and international focus. Her most important work is: (1997) La formación del profesorado en Educación en Valores. Bilbao: Desclée de Brouwer (2nd edition: 2000). In addition, she is the Editor of “Aprender a ser” a book collection devoted to Values Education published by Editorial Desclée de Brouwer, Bilbao. The collection includes over thirty published titles. Professor Buxarrais is the Spanish representative on the editorial board of the Journal of Moral Education, an international journal specializing in the subject of moral education.

PAUL CLARKE joined the Faculty of Education at the University of Regina (Saskatchewan, Canada) in 1999. His academic background is interdisciplinary in nature with a focus on the fields of law and education. He teaches at both the undergraduate and graduate level in the field of educational administration with a particular focus on school law. His research interests focus on human rights in the educational setting.

JUAN ESCÁMEZ is Doctor in Philosophy and Full Professor of Philosophy of Education at the Universidad de Valencia. He has held many posts in academic administration, including: Dean of the Faculty of Philosophy, Psychology and Education of the Universidad de Murcia; member of the Education Council of the Valencia Regional Government; Director of the Valencia Institute of Evaluation and Educational Quality; Director of the Department of Educational Theory of the Universidad de Valencia; and Coordinator of the Valencia university's Doctoral Program "Educational actions and community development". He has given courses and lectures at several Latin American universities and he has participated as a speaker in numerous conferences. Professor Escámez belongs to the editorial boards of various national and international journals: Revista Española de Pedagogía, Revista Interuniversitaria de Teoría de la Educación, Revista Española de Drogodependencias, Anales de Pedagogía, Papers d'educació, Itaca, Encounters on Education. He has directed twenty-four doctoral theses and coordinated nine research projects sponsored by public and private institutions. He has published twelve books and seventy-four articles in journals in various countries. His most recent books include: (2001) La educación en la responsabilidad, Barcelona, Editorial Paidós; (2002) La educación de la ciudadanía, Madrid, CCS-ICCE; (2002) Claves educativas para escuelas no conflictivas, Barcelona, Idea Books; (2003) O protagonismo na educação, Porto Alegre (Brasil), Artmed Editora.

MAURICE FELDMAN is a Professor in the Department of Child and Youth Studies at Brock University. His research interests include interventions for persons with intellectual disabilities, parent training, and early intervention. He provides psychological and behavioural consultations to community agencies supporting persons with intellectual disabilities, and has been an advisor to the President's Committee on Intellectual Disabilities in the United States, as well as governmental departments and NGOs in Canada, the United States, and Europe.

FERNANDO GIL holds Master's and Doctorate degrees in Philosophy and Education from the Universidad Complutense de Madrid, winning highest honours in graduate and doctoral studies. Professor Gil is a grant recipient from the National Plan for the Training of University Researchers and he has been an Associate Professor in the Department of Theory and History of Education at the Universidad Complutense since 1996. Professor Gil's expertise is in the areas of human rights teaching, children's rights, teaching prison inmates, and in narrative research as applied to education. He has published a number of books, book chapters and articles on several of these subjects. Advisor and collaborator in the education section of Amnesty International on the research project "The teaching of human rights in Spanish universities" ("La enseñanza de los derechos humanos en las universidades españolas"). He was awarded, along with Professor Gonzalo Jover, the Infancia Prize by the Comunidad de Madrid regional government in the year 2000, for his work in education research.

DOROTHY M. GRIFFITHS, Ph.D., is a Professor in the Department of Child and Youth Studies at Brock University. Dorothy has extensive applied, research, and publication history in the area of intellectual disabilities.

DIEGO ITURRALDE is an Ecuadorian lawyer and anthropologist and a specialist in Legal Anthropology and the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. Diego Iturralde has been a professor and researcher at the Universidad Católica del Ecuador, the Universidad Iberoamericana, Mexico, Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, the Universidad de La Cordillera, Bolivia, and in FLACSO. He has served as the General Secretary of the Inter-American Indigenist Institute (Instituto Indigenista Interamericano), Technical Secretary of the Latin American and Caribbean Indigenous Peoples' Development Fund (Fondo para el Desarrollo de los Pueblos Indígenas de América Latina y el Caribe) and as President of the Board of Directors of the National Council of the Development of the Nationalities and Peoples of Ecuador (Consejo Nacional de Desarrollo de las Nacionalidades y Pueblos del Ecuador). Currently he serves as Coordinator of the Unit of Applied Research of the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights.

BRUCE MacDOUGALL is Professor of Law in the University of British Columbia, where he has been on faculty since 1988. A member of the BC Bar, he has been Visiting Professor at King's College, University of London, and at the University of Florida. He teaches and does research in commercial and finance law as well as human rights law where he specialises in the law and sexual orientation.

MICHAEL E. MANLEY-CASIMIR is professor and Dean of the Faculty of Education at Brock University. He received his B.A.(1962) from the University of Exeter (U.K.), his M.Ed.(1968) from the University of British Columbia and his Ph.D.(1976) from the University of Chicago. Prior to his appointment at Brock in 1998, Dr Manley-Casimir spent 24 years in the Faculty of Education at Simon Fraser University. In May 2004 he completed his LL.M. through the Faculty of Law at the University of British Columbia and investigated the meaning of 'freedom of conscience' in the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

MIQUEL MARTÍNEZ is a full Professor of Educational Theory at the Universidad de Barcelona and a member of the Research Group on Education in Values and Moral Development (Grupo de Investigación de Educación en Valores y Desarrollo Moral, GREM). Currently, Professor Martínez is the Director of the Institute of Educational Studies (ICE) of the Universidad de Barcelona. He collaborates in the Program of Education in Values of the Organization of Ibero-American States for Education, Science and Culture (Organización de Estados Iberoamericanos para la Educación, la Ciencia y la Cultura, OEI). He is member of the Board of the Educational Project of the City (Proyecto Educativo de Ciudad) and of the Commission on Citizen Participation (Comisión de Civismo) of the city of Barcelona. He is the author and coauthor of different articles and books, including Educación moral y democracia (1989), El contrato moral del profesorado (1998), Un lugar llamado escuela en la sociedad de la información y la diversidad (2001), La convivencia en los centros de secundaria. Estrategias para abordar el conflicto (2003), ¿Qué significa educar en valores hoy? (2004).

GLENYS McQUEEN-FUENTES is an Associate Professor in the Department of Dramatic Arts at Brock University. After postgraduate studies at the Jacques Lecoq School of Physical Theatre in Paris, France, she did professional and social action theatre in New Zealand, Mexico, and Canada. Her research interests include using movement and music for teaching and learning.

BRIAN OREND is Director of International Studies, and Associate Professor of Philosophy, at the University of Waterloo in Canada. He is the author of three books, most recently Human Rights: Concept and Context (Broadview, 2002), which has been a required textbook at more than 30 universities around the world, including Stanford and Johns Hopkins. His works have been translated into French, Spanish and Vietnamese. He holds a doctorate from Columbia University in New York City, and his latest project is another textbook, Warfare: Right and Wrong.

FRANCES OWEN is an Associate Professor in the Department of Child and Youth Studies at Brock University. Her research interests centre on the interface between clinical and organizational systems, with a particular focus on the development of early intervention and prevention systems in services for children and for people with intellectual disabilities.

MARYSE PAQUIN is associate professor at the Faculty of Education at the University of Ottawa. Her field of teaching and research relates to social studies method. She has an interest on Citizenship education and non-violence. In this regard, she is carrying out an important research program on violence prevention in the French elementary schools of Ontario. Furthermore, she is member of the Scientific Committee of the International School Violence Observatory and of the Canadian School Violence Prevention Network.

MARYSE PAQUIN est professeure agrégée à la Faculté d'éducation de l'Université d'Ottawa. Son champ d'enseignement et de recherche est la didactique des sciences sociales. Elle porte un intérêt particulier à l'éducation antidiscriminatoire et à la non violence. En relation avec cet intérêt, elle mène un important programme de recherche sur la prévention de la violence dans les écoles élémentaires francophones de l'Ontario. Elle fait partie du Comité scientifique de l'Observatoire international de la violence scolaire, de même que du Réseau canadien de la prévention de la violence à l'école.

MONTSERRAT PAYÁ is Associate Professor in the Department of Theory and History of Education at the Universidad de Barcelona. He is a member of the Working Group for Innovation in Teaching "Innova.the" (Grupo Consolidado de Innovación Docente "Innova.the") and the Research Group on Education in Values and Moral Development (Grupo de Investigación de Educación en Valores y Desarrollo Moral, GREM). Professor Payá's research is related to topics in education and values. Her publications include, Educación en valores para una sociedad abierta y plural: Aproximación conceptual (2000, 2a ed.); and in collaboration, Valores Transversales en la Práctica Educativa (2001).

SÉBASTIEN POIRIER is a master's student at the Faculty of Education at the University of Ottawa. His field of research is Citizenship education. More precisely, his thesis refers to the grade 10 Franco-Ontarian teachers' perception of citizenship education and the now mandatory citizenship education course of the Ontario curriculum.

SÉBASTIEN POIRIER est étudiant à la maîtrise en éducation à l'Université d'Ottawa. Son sujet de thèse porte sur l'éducation à la citoyenneté. Plus particulièrement, il s'intéresse à la perception qu'ont les enseignants franco-ontariens de 10e année de ce champ et du cours obligatoire dorénavant inscrit au curriculum de l'Ontario.

ANA MARÍA RODINO is of Argentine-Costa Rican descent. Professor Rodino has a Bachelor's degree in Humanities from the Universidad de Rosario, Argentina, a Master's degree in Linguistics from the Universidad de Costa Rica, and a doctorate in Education from Harvard University in the United States. Dr. Rodino is an educator, a researcher, and an author of diverse scientific and didactic publications in the field of linguistics as applied to education, the production of educational materials (written, audiovisual and electronic), and education in human rights. Currently she is a researcher and teacher in the doctoral program in Education at the Universidad Estatal a Distancia de Costa Rica and is Coordinator of the Pedagogical Unit of the IIDH.

CAROL SALES is a Professor in the Department of Organizational Behaviour, Human Resources, Entrepreneurship and Ethics at Brock University. She has a particular interest in training and development and organizational issues in human service organizations.

KAREN STONER was the project manager of the 3Rs human rights training and research project. She is currently an Autism Spectrum Disorders Consultant in the School Support Program of Hamilton Health Sciences in Hamilton, Ontario. She is also a part-time graduate student in the Department of Child and Youth Studies at Brock University, with interests in the area of generalization of training.

CHRISTINE Y. TARDIF, Ph.D., is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Child and Youth Studies at Brock University. Professor Tardif is currently involved in two major research projects, one that examines the impact of interactive technology on human rights training for individuals with intellectual disabilities and another that explores the impact of acculturation disparity on the quality of communication among Chinese-Canadian mothers and their adolescent children.

DONATO TARULLI is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Child and Youth Studies at Brock University. His interests in dialogical and hermeneutical approaches to the development of self-understanding include the elaboration of a metatheoretical framework that highlights the situational, dialogic unfolding of human rights praxis in individuals with intellectual disabilities.